How To Pack Apples

The long established custom of selling apples on the trees--"Lumpin' 'em off"--has done more to upset the Missouri apple market than any other practice. The best and most successful growers in the State do not sell that way.

A good substantial pack of sound apples should be put up. They should be sorted into two or three grades according to size. If the variety is quite uniform make two grades. If it runs large and small, make three. Mark the barrels to indicate the size. A barrel of uniform, medium sized apples will outsell a barrel of equally good ones of mixed sizes on any market.

In barrel packing, face with the stems to the head. The facers should not misrepresent the contents of the barrel either in size, color or quality. Shake the barrel several times during the filling. Place the top layer stems up, the outside row an inch or so higher than the end of the staves, the middle an inch higher than the outside row. Better be too high than too low. Use corrugated paper pads at both ends of the barrel, smooth side of the pad to fruit.

With the better sorts, such as Jonathan, Grimes, etc., there is a place for box packing. But boxes should be used in connection with barrels. Box the best, following the western standard as closely as possible, barrel the rest, sorting according to size.

Better methods of production and packing will make marketing easier and more profitable. The Missouri College of Agriculture at Columbia is ready to give detailed information to any farmer in Missouri who wants to know more about grading and packing apples.

Starve The Hessian Fly

Here is a recipe for putting the Hessian Fly out of business that is guaranteed by the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri to be as effective as it is simple.

Bury the flies. Plow soon after harvest as deeply as conditions will permit. Most of the insects are now in the flaxseed or resting stage, down at the crown of the old wheat plants between the leaf sheath and the stalk. Plowing will destroy them. A harrow or disc should follow the plow to compact the soil.

Destroy the Volunteer wheat. Cultivate the plowed ground during the late summer and early fall to destroy the volunteer wheat and weeds. Volunteer wheat provides a breeding and feeding grounds for the full crop of flies. Keep it down and avoid one common source of fly infestation.

Sow on or soon after fly free date. Sow the wheat just as late as advisable to have it up and establish before winter. Prepare the seed bed thoroughly and when this is done the wheat may be sown much later without danger from winter killing. The fly free date or dates of safe sowing are approximately as follows: For the northern third of Missouri, October 1st; for the central third of the State, October 8th; and for the southern third, October 16th. It will be noticed that the dates of safe sowing become later as we go southward. Farmers should therefore make their wheat sowings conform as nearly as possible to the dates suited to their locations in the different parts of the state.

Get your neighbors to cooperate. Cooperation is essential especially during bad fly years. In one negligent or careless farmer sows his wheat early or fails to destroy the volunteer wheat, he may have enough flies in his wheat next spring to not only destroy his own wheat crops, but to also destroy the wheat crops of all his neighbors, although they may have practiced all the remedies mentioned above.

Big Crowd Heard Kyrl

Keytesville was represented to the extent of 50 or 100 persons at the chautauqua at Salisbury Friday night to hear the Kyrl band. The band played a good concert of popular stuff and the most pretentious offering of the evening being the Hungarian Rhapsody. Kyrl played a cornet solo with two encores and the band generally was profuse of encores. The program was enjoyed as the band of about 30 pieces was well orchestrated and contained capable instrumentalists. The work of landing the chautauqua another year was commenced that night as the chautauqua committee went through the crowd to get a ticket guarantee. This year, the merchants of the town have decided on a new plan. Instead of them individually and collectively guaranteeing all the chautauqua, they decided to let the people themselves guarantee 500 tickets at $2.00 each. With $1000 guaranteed by a large number of people, they the merchants agreed to stand back of the rest of the enterprise. There have been a few men of the town who year after year have stood back of the chautauqua and they have each year, had to make good some coin. They want to distribute the responsibility this year. The platform manager announced that the $1500 guarantee did not pay the expenses of the chautauqua the actual cost of which was $2200. It was thought that the proper guarantee would be raised and that the assembly could be had another year.

Chased Juvenile Married

After a considerable chase, the parents of Miss Elizabeth Odin, aged 14 of Sumner, managed to take her back home but not until after she had been married to Elmer Dysart aged 26. The couple were married by Rev. Trotter Monday afternoon. Next day the bride and groom left for their honeymoon. Village gossip told the parents they had gone. The father, Buzz Odin, hired a jitney bus and went after them. The girl, was caught at Bucklin as she and hub were ready to take a train to Macon. The girl went home and Dysart was arrested and put under $300 bond. The preliminary hearing was to be Tuesday.

To the Public

"I feel that I owe the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy a word of gratitude," writes Mrs. T. N. Witherall, Gowanda, N. Y. "When I began taking this medicine I was in great pain and feeling terribly sick, due to an attack of summer complaint. After taking a dose of it I had not long to wait for relief as it benefited me almost immediately." Obtainable everywhere.

New Candidate For State Treasurer.

John C. Russell, chief clerk in the state treasurers office, is boomed by the Enterprise-Courier of Charleston, Mo., for State Treasurer. It is presumable that Mr. Russell's acquiescence was first had and obtained and therefore it is not a case of solicited receptivity. Mississippi county is enjoying the honor of the office at this time and since she has furnished good men always, using the expression to cover the south east part of the state, we can rely on that fact to endorse the qualification suggestions by the Enterprise-Courier. We could do nothing less than expect a square Deal from that section.

Paying the Price

With the war costing $75,000,000 a day the price will have to be paid by someone in the future. No one has even made a start on paying for it yet and the cost is going to be paid by future generations. During the stimulus of war not so much attention is being paid to payment proposition but it will be the reaction that will follow the close of the war when the people bend their backs to the plough and the wounded and torn are put up against the proposition of making a living.

New Parcel Post Rates

September 1 there went into effect new rates for insurance on parcel post packages as follows:

value $5	3 cents
$25	5 cents
$50	10 cents
$100	25 cents

Eighty four inches will now be allowed sent by parcel post, that is, measure longways around the package and then around the center short way and if both measurements do not exceed 84 inches, you are within the limit.

"Dazzlers".

Cities have begun the regulation of the electric headlight on motor cars. The light is so intense as to dazzle those in front and increase the risk of accidents. Numbers of collisions have resulted from drivers being blinded by the lights and pedestrians are almost as bad as rabbits about getting in the clear when a dazzler is approaching.

In the country it is not so bad because there are fewer machines, but those who have seen the electric streak pointing skyward from over a hill and rapidly settling down on them only to blind and confuse when it strikes, can appreciate the disposition to advocate dimmers in the cities.

Worth Their Weight in Gold

"I have used Chamberlain's Tablets and found them to be just as represented, a quick relief for headaches, dizzy spells and other symptoms denoting a torpid liver and a disordered condition of the digestive organs. They are worth their weight in gold," writes Miss Clara A. Driggs, Elba, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere.

Scissor Needle Threader

There has been made scissors about the size of the ordinary button hole tool which has an attachment by which the finest needle can be threaded. There is a small tube into which the needle is placed and a sort of hook which operates to pull the thread into the tube when the jaws are opened, then slowly close the scissors and the hook draws the thread thru the eye of the finest kind of needle.

Didn't Pay Interest

In one newspaper an article was printed that indicated that the Panama canal was a good proposition. No doubt about it from one standpoint but as the earnings were a little in excess of four millions and the returns above operating expenses were a little more than $200,000 and further; that this does not include interest on the investment, depreciation and funds for repairs, sinking fund, etc. it seems not to have paid so well. If the canal cost somewhere near four hundred million dollars as estimated, the interest on the investment figured as low as 4 per cent would be sixteen millions of dollars which itself would leave a pretty costly business.

Care of the Ears

In speaking of the chronic ear discharges that afflict many people, especially the young, a physician of the M. U. says that "the condition of discharging ears is the cause of 40 per cent of all cases of abscesses of the brain. He says that in removing was or other matter from the ear nothing should be used excepting a damp cloth on the finger. If anything further is needed a physician should be summoned. He further says that a child which is afflicted with chronic discharges of the ears should never dive while bathing."
